

Doctoral Internship in Health Service Psychology

Howard University is a comprehensive, research oriented, historically Black private university providing an educational experience of exceptional quality to students of high academic potential with particular emphasis upon the provision of educational opportunities to promising Black students. Further, the University is dedicated to attracting and sustaining a cadre of faculty who are, through their teaching and research, committed to the development of distinguished and compassionate graduates and to the quest for solutions to human and social problems in the United States and throughout the world.

The Howard University Counseling Service (HUCS) is highly committed to the training of doctoral level interns in psychology. The philosophy of the internship training program offered at the Howard University Counseling Service is to prepare psychologists who want to work with racially and culturally diverse and underserved populations using a practitioner-scholar model. Our APA accredited program offers depth and diversity, providing extensive as well as intensive supervision to prepare interns for their chosen professions in psychology. At the HUCS interns are encouraged to work in close liaison with their supervisors and are respected as professional colleagues. Interns are expected to engage in some degree of self-disclosure as part of the learning process. Our program includes training and supervision in the following areas:

- Individual Counseling and Psychotherapy
- Group Counseling
- Psychodiagnostics
- Intake Interviewing
- University Outreach Programs
- Rotational Placements in Inpatient Psychiatry and Forensic Assessment

The training program places emphasis on ethnic and individual differences. The international faculty, staff and student population at Howard University and the surrounding community provide a culturally rich learning environment for the UCS intern. Howard University offers fully integrated training and seminars to develop the intern's sensitivity in working with people from diverse backgrounds. The UCS intern will learn the significance of cultural and ethnic influences on personality development and coping skills and how to apply psychodynamic treatment approaches to varied populations.

Applicants must be enrolled in a doctoral program in counseling or clinical psychology. All formal course work and comprehensive examinations for the doctorate must be completed. Candidates must have completed 400 intervention hours. We offer a competitive stipend, health benefits, annual and sick leave, release time for professional development, and support (if the budget allows) for approved professional development activities.

To apply to the internship program candidates must submit the AAPI Online by November 7th which includes the APPIC online application, letter of interest, updated curriculum vitae, official copies of all graduate transcripts, and three letters of recommendation. Letter should be included in your online application.

Internship Program Admissions

Briefly describe in narrative form important information to assist potential applicants in assessing their likely fit with your program. This description must be consistent with the program’s policies on intern selection and practicum and academic preparation requirements: The Howard University Counseling Service (HUCS) Doctoral Internship Training Program uses a practitioner-scholar model to prepare interns to be well-rounded, entry level psychologists with special competencies in working with diverse populations. A minimum of 400 intervention hours is required of applicants. Also, a strong background in psychological assessment is preferred; given the required rotation in assessment at DC Superior Court Child Guidance Clinic. Interns complete one full year of specialized training in the substantive area of clinical/counseling psychology A degree of self-disclosure during supervision and training seminars is expected as part of the learning process. The workload is as follows: Direct Service Activities, Training Activities, Administrative Activities, Professional Development, Teaching, and Supervision. Our program utilizes a psychodynamic theoretical orientation, brief and long-term therapy models, and includes special training in group counseling and therapy. Most direct service hours take place at Howard University Counseling Service with a diverse undergraduate, graduate, and professional student population; but HUCS interns also complete 3 rotational placements. The first rotation is at Howard University Hospital (HUH) Inpatient Psychiatry Unit. Interns train at HUH a half day each week for 4 months. On this rotation they learn about inpatient treatment from the HUH psychiatry team and HUH supervisor. The HUH inpatient rotation is in-person training with Covid-19 health and safety protocols in place. The second rotation is a forensic assessment rotation and takes place at the District of Columbia Superior Court's Child Guidance Clinic. Interns go to the court one day biweekly, for 6 months and conduct psychological assessments. Integrative reports are generally due on a weekly basis during the 6-month rotation. The forensic assessment rotation is in-person training with Covid-19 health and safety protocols in place. The third rotation is a two-month rotation based on individual choice. In the past, interns have chosen rotations in research, trauma, assessment, group, administration, etc. Each component of the internship program (individual therapy, group counseling, outreach, teaching, assessment, inpatient psychiatry) includes a separate supervision focused on that respective component.

Professional development is supported throughout the internship year. We typically fund three required conferences during the training year. Two of the required conferences are focused on group, and one conference is focused on forensic assessment. A diversity/cultural competency workshop and a DSM-V Workshop are typically also offered during the training year.
